How do I hide my own number when making a call?

Quickline Talk · https://quickline.co.uk/knowledge/how-do-i-hide-my-own-number-when-making-a-call/

If you want to hide your own number when making a call on Talk+, simply dial 141 before the phone number. This prevents your number from showing on the recipient's caller ID.

Why Hide Your Number?

There are several reasons you might want to hide your number when calling:

- Keep your personal number private when calling someone new
- Call businesses without sharing your personal contact details
- Prevent your number appearing on call logs
- Make calls when you don't want to be called back

How to Hide Your Number

To hide your own number when making a call:

1. Dial 141 before the full phone number
2. Then dial the complete number including the area code

Example: To call 01482 247365 without showing your number, dial 141 01482 247365

The person you're calling will see "Number Withheld" or "Private Number" instead of your phone number.

Hiding Your Number for All Calls

If you want to hide your own number when making every call, contact our technical support team.

We can set your line to withhold your number permanently, so you don't need to dial 141 each time.

Please note - if you have this enabled it will hide your number for all calls and dialling 1470 before a number will not show your number for individual calls.

Common Problems When Hiding Your Number

My number still showed on caller ID

- Check you dialled 141 before the full number including area code
- Make sure there were no spaces or pauses when dialling

I want my number to show again

- Simply call normally without using 141
- If you've set permanent number withholding give our tech support team a call.

The person I called couldn't see who was calling

- This is normal when you hide your number when making a call
- They'll see "Number Withheld", "Private Number", or "Unknown"

Some Numbers Won't Accept Hidden Calls

Be aware that some organizations (like emergency services, banks, and certain customer service lines) may not accept calls from withheld numbers for security reasons.

Helpful Tips

- Using 141 only hides your number for that specific call
- You need to dial 141 each time you want to hide your number when calling
- Your number will still appear on your phone bill and call records
- The recipient won't be able to call you back easily if your number is hidden
